POETRY.

AWAY O'ER THE RIPPLING SEA

Away o'er the rippling sea,—
The moon shines bright in the blue above,
And my arm entwines the form of my love,
And care hath no hold on me.

The winds are rife with the flowers' perfume,
And my loved one's cheek, like the rose in bloom,
Is bedeck'd in its virgin pride.

Away, o'er the ocean's wave,— Where the mermaid strews her pearly nest With the unknown gems which she loves best, And builds up the mariner's grave.

Thy swelling wave with its crest of gold, Is a type of the virtue my arms enfold;—All else is naught, for my love is true.

Away o'er the rippling sea,— The moon shines bright in the blue above, And my arms enfold the form of my love, And care shall forever flee! From the New England Magazine.

If one good turn deserves another, my old coat has legal or equitable claims upon me; for though not twice blessed, it has been once turned and once dyed. No tyrant would forbid a victim to jest upon his own misfortunes, and my poverty shall not prevent my jesting upon my old coat.

MY COAT AND TROWSERS.

The materials are well nigh eternal-they came to me in descent. The whole coat was but the left wing of my grandfather's cloak, cut up by his venerable relict into a coat for me, and trowsers for Josiah. It is the first coat I ever had, and it bids fair to be the last.— Though I have so grown that it is now rather short, it will, according to the old jest, be long enough before I get another. It has undergone such changes that it must have lost all consciousness of identity—it has been so changed, that I myself should not know it, but by instinct. I have worn it so long, that if fortune should relent, and enable me to buy a new one, I should have little joy of it—I should sigh for "mine ease" in the old garment. I should grow out of conceit with myself, in a new coat, if I should not mistake myself for some one else. Of all men that thrive by public favor, none are under so little obligations to me as the tailors. They might be killed by nines, and not a man of them would, living or dying, make any change in my comforts or costume. Fashions, of course, being the breath of a tailor's nostrils, are not subjects for my contemplations. Fate has ordained that I should have a "cool suspense" from the pleasures and pain attendant on a change in fashion. In the various revolutions thereof, my old coat has been thirteen times in the mode, and I look to the time when long waists and short skirts will become respectable, for the fourteenth time.

My trowsers are more in the light of moveables,they are mere chattels, and partake less of the freehold. They have arrived, however, at that stage of tenuity that was contemplated in the song; and, by a wise provision of the tailor, and perfectly convenient to a wearer in my circumstances, -they were made without pockets. Permit me to extract a verse from the seng which it has often been a comfort to me to sing.

ing, walking, daneing, &c.; but this is, to my views, a most preposterous luxury. I can dance as high as any body, in my old pepper and salts; and I can walk away they intend keeping a general assortment of Boots and Shoes of the best quality—which they will sell as cheap as can be had from a mad dog in them, as fast as any other man .-As to riding, I was never on horse-back but once, and then, I admit, that it was a hard matter for me to keep my trowsers down. They were aspiring, like the bleod of Lancaster, and rose to my knees. But, though they have not been hardly used, their constitution is nearly broken: they are failing of mere old age, and my present thoughts, and, to say truth, employment in writing this memoir, is to procure a pair of iron-gray successors.

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 16, 1834.

The Veracity of the Opposition .- The reckless manner in which the opposition, from the highest to the bamblest of its members, publish falsehoods, gross, deliberate, premeditated falsehoods, is an outrage upon common morality. We pass over the recent conviction of the Idol of the party, and of the false statement about the Pennsylvania election in 1832, signed by five citizens of Boston, and sent into New Hampshire and Maine to deceive the people, and come down to the humbler tools of the opposition.

On the 20th of June last, the last day of the last session of Congress, Mr Webster presented a memorial, signed by

William G. Eaton, Richard Hildreth, J. Richardson, Wm. H. Tileston, Joseph A. Ballard. J. Vincent Browne, William Willett. John R. Bradlee, E. S. Snow, J. E. Stone, George Matchett,

John Grew, Charles B. Darling, Samuel Wheelwright, Jr., citizens of Boston, containing, among other equally false statements, the following :-

"To the Honorable Senate of the United States. "The undersigned, citizens of Boston, having carefully compared the names borne upon the Anti-Bank Memothe legal list of votes prepared by the Mayor and Aldermen, beg leave respectfully to represent, that said memorial contains but eleven hundred and thirty of the QUALIFIED VOTERS of this city, instead of three thousand and sixty seven, as IT PURhim.

The anti-Bank Memorial to which they refer, is in the following words :-

"To the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assem-

"The undersigned, inhabitants of the city of Boston, respectfully represent to both branches of Congress, that they are opposed to the re-charter of the Bank of the U. States on any condition whatever, and disapprove of the return of the public deposites to that institution.

"The undersigned believe that the affairs of that Bank may be wound up at the end of its charter, in March, 1836, with the additional two years granted in that instrument, without necessarily producing general embarrassment, or any evils, the apprehension of which ought to prevent the performance of a duty, which the undersigned believe, the National Legislature owe to the present age and to posterity."

This is the whole of the anti-Bank Memorial, and the reader will perceive that it neither "purports" to contain any number of names, nor that the signers are "qualified voters." These humble drudges of those who are themselves but the paid agents of Biddle's Bank, for the purpose of fixing a falsehood upon nearly three thousand citizens of Boston, do not hesitate to fabricate a gross and palpable misstatement-one that must have been obvious to the Senate to whom it was addressed, and to every man who would put their statement to the test. Such an act as this indicates the existence of a depraved moral feeling extending beyond those who signed the memorial. They must have reckoned on a similar feeling among their political partizans, in and out of the Senate, or they would not have pursued a course which would have forfeited their own respect, and the good opinion of their political associates. They knew the kind of morals which governed their partizans in and out of the Senate, and pursued that course which was calculated to gain them favor and influence, and promotion in their own ranks. The young Spartage were taught to steal, because thieving was made honorable in their country. The other statements made in the memorial, are entitled to no more credit than this one which we have exposed. We may,

It was voted that a committee of seven be chosen to select a suitable candidate for a member of Congress The following gentlemen were appointed on that committee, viz: Messrs Spear, Adams, Stacy, Batcheller, Douglas, Washburn, and Meserve. The Committee retired in pursuance of their duty, and returned and reported the following preamble and resolu-

Whereas the time has fully come when the producing classes in these United States are in duty bound to assume the management of their own affairs, and no longer leave them to the control of their enemies : And whereas it is of the highest importance to the welfare of this class, that they should select for their agents, honest and capable men, who have manifested their regard for the best interests of the people by their longmurphy." John's politics or potations won him a berth tried and faithful service in promoting their cause, which is the cause of equal rights—the cause of the millions: And whereas William Foster, of this city, has given the most convincing and satisfactory proofs of his friendship for the producing class, by his invaluable labors in their behalf-Therefore,

Resolved, That we, the mechanics, artisans, and other workingmen of the First Congressional District, in proof of the sincerity of our professions, and our determination to prefer our friends, rather than our foes, to every office within our gift, do nominate WILLIAM FOSTER, as our candidate for a seat in the next Congress of the United States, and that we will, by all fair ly gave him one month, a "change came o'er the spirit and honorable means, do every thing in our power to insure his election.

Resolved, That at the head of these evils, we place the United States Bank, an institution owned by the monied aristocracy of Europe and this country, and which has dared, aided and abetted by most of the State Banks-all of which belong to the same family, and possess the same cruel and wicked disposition-to put itself in hostile array against the liberties of this

Resolved, That we, the people, will spare no exertions, nor neglect any opportunity that offers, to rid ourselves of these great and alarming evils, and for this purpose, we will, at all times, hold ourselves in readiness to repair to the ballot box ("the wooden sceptre of the people's sovreignty") and there, by our own united efforts, place in power, those, and those only, who will use their utmost exertions to destroy the evils complained of, and place our institutions on the foundation laid by the illustrious Jefferson and his worthy compeer. AT THE MASONIC TEMPLE. ESSRS LE MAIRE, ISENBECK & WERDEN, have the honor to inform the Ladies and Gentlemen of Boston and vicinity, that they will give a SOIREE MUSICALE and exhibit the new invented and highly improved instrument, called the TERPODION.

THIS EVENING, October 16,

called the TERPODION.

This instrument, lately brought over with them from Germany, has been declared, by the most eminent professors in Europe, to be the most perfect instrument yet invented.— Among these professors may be mentioned the celebrated names of Spohr, Hummel, Rink and Kuffner, together with many others, who have given it their most decided approbation. One great and very remarkable beauty of this instrument, is the great facility with which the Crescendo and Decrescendo can be performed at the will of the performer, by the mere action of the finger. In Adagio, Andante, and all pathetic movements, the effect is truly sublime. Imitations of different instruments, such as the flute, oboe, clarionet, horn, hassoon, the lust particularly powerful, are easily effected on the Terpodion. The tone of this instrument is produced without the aid of bellows, Fipen, or strings, but simply by the pressure and friction of two wooden bodies.

Ladies and Gentlemen who may feel disposed to examine called the TERPODION.

Ladies and Gentlemen who may feel disposed to examine this interesting instrument, can have an opportunity between the acts of the Concert.

POSITIVE, OR NO PAY.—Mrs. Hittles Cough Drops, or Vegetable Health Restorative.—Prepared entirely from Vegetables.

More than forty years have now elapsed since the receipt was given me by my unele, a celebrated Physician, at a time that I was troubled with a very bad cough and cold. After taking one dose, I found immediate relief, and a few doses cured me enirely; the effects were astonishing quick, and the numerous in stances of the wonderful efficacy of these drops on different people, has induced me to put them up in Phials, with directions, under the impression it would be a public benefit. And as that is my sole aim—and to convince the public that is all, and as a sure guarantee against quackery and deception, I authorise my agents to return the money to all those that do not get relief by their returning the bottle and directions. The relief and abso lute cure, particularly of those numerous and complicated disorders arising from neglected colds, is amply attested by the acknowledged approbation of those who are now restored to perfect health, as well as many in the decline of life who frankly acknowledge having received great relief from the use of them in the following diseases, viz:—Coughs, Colds, Asthma, Spitting of Blood, Hooping Cough, Difficulty of Breathing, Influenza, Quinsea, Phthisic, Croup, and all disorders arising from colds. Price 37½ cents per bottle.

For sale wholesale and retail by J. P. Hall, Jr. sole agent, No. 1 Union street, corner of Elm street; Asahel Boyden, Hancock street; Charles Holbrook, Leverett street; E. S. Holden, corner of Beacon and Charles streets; A. Geyer, Hanover st.; John White, Jr. School st.
